After a hard fought battle, handshakes.... Handshakes, a true sign of good sportsmanship, some thing that was seen a great deal of as guys would shake hands after the game, “It was a touch of class by the guys, I thought” stated Razor, who unlike Billy Smith will shake the hand of An opponent after a game.

Jingles holds up Stanleys’ Cup as Cribzie looks on and thinks, “man that trophy is up high, wow Jingles is a tall handsome man”.

Tomcats Sign, 2011 3rd Draft Pick Matt Rowe

Rowe finishes up Collegiate Scholarship at Michigan State as a Spartan and is runner up in the Hoby Baker Award by 1 vote.

Michigan State –AP- High school sensation, Matt 'Frosty' Rowe was a standout, but his father pushed him to get an education and not to play in the OHL Ranks, so that is what Rowe did, attending Michigan State and getting his Human Kinetics degree, he is now willing to play professional hockey and signed with the Tomcats to an entry level contract. "I am very excited to get my professional career going, I know breaking into line up, will be very tough, all I am asking for is a 'show case' tryout and take it from there a jubilant Rowe had indicated. Asked about his nickname, he said, he knew nothing about it. "Some of us, I won't mention who, thought the kid looked like Frosty the Snowman, so we started calling him Frosty". Indicated Steve Jaworiwsky.

"Every Tomcat has a Nickname, so any new guy coming in needs one, that is just the way it is", indicated Aaron 'Chico' White.

Rowe will be show cased for one Tuesday sometime in 2014, unknown when, and then will be sent to the minors, to play with the Bad Axe Bearcats.
